

SWEARS

SWEARS a fuzzy alternative rock band originating from Middlesbrough, drawing influences from grunge, punk, doom and pop.

The band consists of Joel Clayton, Cypriot brothers George and Stephanos Louca, and Craig Hughes. Every member of the band has been gigging and touring for a number of years and after a few jams on stage in numerous side projects and realising how much fun it was playing music together and decided to make it official and Swears was born.

Even though the band only officially launched in July for the support gig with Yorkshire favourites Allusondrugs they have already managed to play gigs in some of Teesside's best venues, including The Georgian Theatre and the Westgarth Social Club and the band are looking to book show all over the North East region and the rest of the UK.

The band headed in the studio in early July and recorded 5 songs with punk hero Steve Hoggart and their long-time brother from another mother Benjamin Taylor. Their debut single "Faith in the Nation" on Nil BY Mouth Records
